

Welcome to JF Technology Management

We provide innovative measurement solutions for compressed air systems & gases, our company is working with a leading and trusted global partner for reliable measurement and monitoring solutions. The products benefit from more than 20 years of experience in the business and our customers attest us outstanding service with short response times.

Today our primary focus is improving the energy efficiency in our customers' compressed air systems. The products and services target reducing costs, improving productivity and providing significant environmental benefits.

Please take your time to browse through our website and learn more about innovative products.

Our Solutions

Application

Our products play a vital role in manifold industrial applications of leading European and Asian companies in reliable monitoring & logging of compressed air systems & gases. This will enable large efficiency gains and a continuously overview of the energy consumption.

READ MORE >

Services

Knowledge Base

Welcome to JF Technology Management. We are happy to have you with us, learn about new innovations, join the next level of efficiency!

JF Technology Management (JFMT) is dedicated to identifying the cause of our customers' problems and finding them long-term quality solutions.

JFMT is a new company in Sweden but with long experience in the compressed air business.

We provide innovative measurement solutions for compressed air systems & gases, our company is working with a leading and trusted global partner for reliable measurement and monitoring solutions. The products benefit from more than 20 years of experience in the business and our customers attest us outstanding service with short response times.

Today our primary focus is improving the energy efficiency in our customers' compressed air systems. The products and services target reducing costs, improving productivity and providing significant environmental benefits.

Please take your time to browse through our website and learn more about innovative products.